The two bronze figures for the Jefferson Davis' Monument have been in Richmond yesterday, with advices to rail.

The monument will consist of a granite colonnade surrounding a column and pedestal. On the higher column will be placed the allegorical figure of a woman, inscribed "Vindicatrix." On the lower pedestal will be a heroic bronze figure of the President of the Confederacy. Both figures are the work of the well-known Virginia sculptor, Mr. E. V. Valentine.

Mork Well Done

Work Well Done,
A special committee went to Providence last week to inspect the two statues before they were shipped. In the party were Judge and Mrs. George L. Christian, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Taylor and Mr. E. V. Valentine. Mr. Valentine said yesterday that the bronzo figures were excellent casts from the plaster models made here.

The statue of Mr. Davis was seen by a committee, consisting of Judge Christian, Mr. E. D. Taylor, Mr. D. C. Richardson and Mr. Valentine last November, and was accepted at that time. On this trip the committee approved of the work on the allegorical figure and directed the Work Well Done.

The statues will probably arrive in Richmond within the next ten days or two weeks. It has not been determined whether there will be any special demonstration in connection with the removal of them from the railroad to its location on Monument Avenue. Many Richmond people remember with pleasure the notation occasions connected with the Lee Monument and also with the Soldiers' and Sallers' Monument on Lifby Hill, when these statues were nauled through the streets by thousands of school-children. The ceremony will no doubt be marked by one of the most notable military and Confederate parades that Richmond has ever seen. A large number of bands of music, military arganizations, and camps of Confederate Veterans have already arranged to take part.

Reunion Badges.

The committee in charge of the Confederate Reunion have arranged with Messrs. Whitehead & Hoag, of Newark, N. J., for the reunion badges, which will be of handsome and appropriate design.

The veteran badge, issued to all Confederate veterans attending the reunion, is of chocolate-colored bronze bearing on the bar the words "United bearing on the bar the words "Veterans, Richmond, Virginia, 1907."

These badges will be issued only to men who saw service during the Civil War, whether they were members of camps of veterans or not. No one will be allowed one of these badges, however, who did not bear arms for the Confederacy.

Ten thousand of those badges have been ordered already, and it now seems as if the attendance of visiting veteran organizations will completely exhaust the supply.

Another badge, which is to be used by the officers, sponsors and committees, will have a bar designating the position of the wearer, with an exidized silver shield, with enamelea flags. This badge is of a peculiarly handsome design, having on the shield, enameled in color, the Confederate and Virginia flags, with the Davis Monument below.

Badges made from this design, but without the bar indicating rank or official position, will also be offered for sale to the public at the time of the reunion.

The entertainment committee of the reunion received last night a letter from Mrs. Jackson, widow of General Stonewall Jackson, who is now living at
